(1) On 6 May the CIA Introduction was conducted for ☐ people.

(2) ☐ people are scheduled to attend the Dependents' Briefing Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, 7 and 8 May. The closing remarks will be given by ☐ C/PK.

(3) The entire Cable Branch/DD/OCR has now attended the Departmental Briefing. A request was also received from OCI for ☐ people to attend the program.

(4) ☐ spent a good deal of time last week scheduling the record number of 22 presentations by CIA personnel to be given in the Strategic Intelligence School. The presentations and choice of speakers have been carefully coordinated with Colonel Arnts, Assistant Commandant, SIS. Colonel Arnts has expressed his appreciation for the extensive support rendered by CIA, upon which SIS relies heavily for its speakers. By way of comparison, the Department of State furnishes but one speaker for each course. OCR is furnishing two speakers from SIC, one from IS, and, for the first time, one from IAS.

B. Intelligence Orientation

(1) ☐ reports the following factors concerning the work expected of the Staff of Introduction to Intelligence during the months of July and August this year: (a) We are in the process of preparing a CIA Support Exhibit to be incorporated into Introduction to Intelligence in either September or October; (b) The Signal Center of the Office of Communications has asked for a special version of Introduction to Intelligence to be given to their people, who cannot be released to attend a regular scheduled course; and (c) We are contemplating a number of changes to Introduction to Intelligence, the changes to be in effect as of 3 September. The changes include:

(1) Preparation of a number of training studies. Four of these are in various stages of writing; three others are still in the idea stage and will probably remain that way until our instructors have finished preparing for and conducting the special program for security officers which runs from 10 through 21 June.

(2) A change in the sequence of the presentation of course material. We intend to experiment with this during the July running and to use some of our "free" time during August to smoothing the inevitable rough edges.

(3) Change of guest speakers. Some time will be necessary for sitting down with and convincing certain people that their offices would be better represented by a speaker other than the one we now use and for explaining to the new speakers what we want them to do.

(4) In connection with all three of the above, we want to develop new seminars based on the lectures and readings. This will affect from 8 to 12 net hours of instruction.

(2) The first week of Intelligence Orientation #9 ended on Friday, 3 May. All instructors have commented that this group, possibly because it is small, is remarkably alert, inquisitive, and eager to participate in all seminars.

(3) [] discussed with [] the proposal from the Office of Communications for a special version of the Introduction to Intelligence for Signal Center personnel. Mr. [] indicated that he had no objections to omitting Introduction to Communism material from the proposed program if OC is not ready to include it, but that Introduction to Communism material should be considered seriously by OC.

(4) In order to accommodate the unexpectedly large number of people who wish to attend [] lecture on 9 May, the schedule of Introduction to Intelligence has been changed slightly so that the lecture can be given in the R & S Auditorium.

(5) On Tuesday, 7 May, Intelligence Orientation was confronted with a potentially serious problem in its planning for the special course for Security Office personnel. [] informed us that it would be necessary for him to run a Counterespionage Operations Course beginning either 3 or 10 June in order to satisfy demands for the course. Since we are committed to cover the CE unit of the Security Officers course during 18 through 21 June, and since there is an insufficient supply of training materials to handle this and the CE Operations course simultaneously, it seemed that a modification of the Security Officers course might be necessary. However, after discussions with [] and a review of the training material in question, it was decided that the reproduction of the training material can be completed. It appears that this job can be handled and will begin as soon as possible.

(6) The typing of the last draft of the second training study to be used in Intelligence Orientation has been completed. This study, "Intelligence Concepts," will receive a final review for type and grammar before being sent for reproduction. A carbon copy of this draft has been given to the Assistant for Overseas Training to serve as a basis for satisfying requests for this type of material to be used in overseas training.
